I can make polite requests, Order dinner in a restaurant and I can ask for and pay the bill in a restaurant

Así se dice

Ordering dinner in a restaurant

To find out what a friend is going to order, ask:

¿Qué vas a pedir?

What are you going to order?

Your friend might say:

Voy a pedir los camarones.

I'm going to order . . .

The waitperson might ask:

¿Qué le puedo traer?

What can I bring you?

You might answer:

Yo quisiera el bistec.

I would like . . .

Así se dice

Asking for and paying the bill in a restaurant

The waitperson may say:

¿Desean algo más?

Do you want anything else?

To ask the waitperson for the bill, say:

¿Nos puede traer la cuenta?

La cuenta, por favor.

To ask about the amount of the bill and the tip, say:

¿Cuánto es?

¿Está incluida la propina?

Is the tip included?

The waitperson might say:

Son veinte mil pesos.

No, no está incluida. Es aparte.

. . . It's separate.

SUGERENCIA

Nota gramatical,

Learning a foreign language is like any other long-term project, such as getting into shape or taking up a new sport: it may take some time to see the results you want. Don't get discouraged, and remember that you can learn Spanish! Keep yourself motivated by setting short-term, realistic goals. A simple goal could be learning five additional words this week or reading an interesting-looking article in a Spanish-language magazine. Once you've learned more Spanish, you could make a goal of going to a store or restaurant in a Spanish-speaking part of town and doing some shopping or ordering a meal entirely in Spanish.

Nota cultural

In Spanish-speaking countries, la cena is a light meal, usually eaten around 8:00 P.M., sometimes as late as 10:00 P.M. (or even later) in Spain. People generally eat a snack (una merienda) around 5:00 P.M. In Ecuador, la merienda usually consists of tea or coffee with bread, or perhaps a bowl of soup.

Nota cultural

Did you know that if you order fruit for dessert in Spain or Latin America, it will be served on a plate with a knife and fork? Instead of switching the hand holding the fork after cutting, Spaniards and Latin Americans usually keep the knife in the right hand and the fork in the left. You may have been taught to put your free hand in your lap, but people in other countries often feel it's more polite to keep both hands on the table throughout the meal.

A lo nuestro

How do you get the attention of the waitperson in a crowded restaurant? Do you raise your hand? Do you call out loud? What is considered rude in one place may be perfectly acceptable somewhere else. In many Spanish-speaking countries, it's considered rude to raise your voice in a crowded room. In Spain, for example, people make the sound tch-tch to get the waitperson's attention; in Costa Rica it's pffft. In Colombia people clap or raise their hands.
